

Jordi Juan-Perez is an active performer who has played concertos around China, Spain, United Kingdom, United States of America and Italy.

Since 2015 he is based in London, but because of professional commitments travels often to Germany and Spain.

Trained at the "Conservatorio Superior Joaquín Rodrigo" in Valencia and at the "Hochschule Für Musik und Theater und Medien" in Hannover, with Professors such as Prof. Fernando Romaguera, Prof. Johannes Peitz and Sharon Kam, Jordi has played in many countries around the world such as Russia, Canada, China, Austria, France, Germany, USA, Venezuela etc.

Jordi has been supported by the Spanish Ministry of Culture (MEC), the University of Hannover, Live Music Now (Yehudi Menuhin), Niedersachsen Stiftung (Germany), and has been awarded in competitions such as Caixa Bank Madrid Competition.

Jordi has also worked with orchestras and ensembles like the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, Royal Northern Sinfonia, Southbank Sinfonia, Royal Scottish National Orchestra, Mahler Chamber Orchestra, National Theatre London, Royal Opera House, Musica Assoluta, Staatstheater Braunschweig, Philharmonic of the Nations, Hallé Orchestra, Cairo Symphony Orchestra among others.

Jordi enjoys performing as much as teaching and has given masterclasses around the Globe like in Cuba, Russia, Germany, the U.K. and Spain.